Editorial Dialogue

“You campaign in poetry but govern in prose.” No one knows what is in future. We are just analysts of Past. We hope but cannot be determined. We can try but cannot be sure of feat. In the big eastman colour drama of winning of the majority, nothing is fixed. Common man is being looted at every cross-road & at every turn of street. What do you say? You can recognize them. No one can. There are the issues-the elder issue, the young issue, the unmarried issue, the secret marriage issue, the mother issue, the forefather issue, the Indian issue and the daughter-in-law of India issue. Various issues are there. Issues are there within the issues. But, no one talks about the future of modern generation, the issues of the adequacy of income, the issues regarding the checks of inflation, the issues of WTO, the issues of chinese products, the issues of dying small and village industries, the issues of payment of MNREGA, the issues of modernisation of education and various other social issues.

After 66 years of independence, Indians are still living under the English Rule. We are following the same system still today. Still public is prayere and officer is lord.

In this Mahayojana of matdaan, parties as well as the candidated are just ignoring the basic, viable and vital issues by commenting each other and we, the pity indians, are laughing seeing COMEDY DAYS WITH THE POLITICAL DRAMA.

Still after 66 years of freedom, we have to learn to feel free. We have to develop infrastructure of equal opportunities. We have to immediately stop the reservation and quota techniques. We have to create effective labour laws. We have to analyse school learning outcomes.

Fundamentally, we have to innovate learning in schools and teaching in colleges and we have to redefine this political system. There must be rules as we have in every service sector does.

So, the basic vision behind the above lines is not only looking in but looking out and looking forward, too.
